BBQ and cabinetry modules

Know the space you have to work with. This will determine the size of your outdoor kitchen and the modules you can include. Once you know your size, start by choosing your built-in BeefEater BBQ and associated BBQ module.

The BBQ modules feature an air frame, which is a thermal heat and fireproof shield between the BBQ and the cabinetry. They also feature vents in the cabinets to comply to standards for LPG cylinder storage.

Next, build out the rest of your kitchen by choosing a combination of either single or double modules, drawer module, fridge module and sink module.

Door finishes and worktops

The doors are made from 6mm compact laminate panels with black anodised aluminium edging and are the ultimate long lasting, low maintenance product. They suit the most demanding, hard working environments. Totally impervious to water they have a beautiful appearance and outstanding stain and wear resistance.

Our contemporary range is designed to transform an outdoor cooking and casual dining space into a functional, practical and legitimate additional room. In essence, the same quality cabinetry and aesthetic from the neighbouring indoor kitchen can be seamlessly carried through to the outdoors – extending the liveability and usability of all available spaces.

The beautiful prefabricated porcelain worktops and waterfall ends complete your outdoor kitchen set up. The porcelain worktops offer high UV resistance, are heat, scratch and stain resistant. The worktops with the matching waterfall ends feature a stunning shadow line for modern contemporary styling. These are available in Eclipse Black and will perfectly match all door colours.
